

You

It took me quite sometime to decide the topic of this article. Finally, I could not think of anything closer to you than you. Take some time and try to think about the following questions. An answer to these questions is not necessary but reflection is. Just reflect on these.

Have you ever wondered who are you? What defines you? What is the one thing that separates you from others? Did it ever come to your mind that the world existed before you were born? The world will exist even after your death. Then, why are you here? Have you ever thought what difference does your existence make to the world? What did you come here for?

You are a mystery until you reveal yourself to the world. Your existence on this planet is nothing less than a miracle. You are the guest of this gigantic cosmos; it has a unique purpose for you. That is the sole reason you are here. Never compare yourself with others. You are irreplaceable; the commander of your life. Take control and live it grand.

You are significant; you are here to make a difference in the lives of people around you. Your actions are reflections of your thoughts. They carry your impression and reveal who you are. You are here to leave your mark and express yourself in this world.

You have never been, never will you be. You should stand by your beliefs and carve a world of your own; you are not here to follow anybody you have come here to discover yourself and be that.

You must unleash yourself in a manner that the world will be richer by your presence. Follow thy mission and celebrate life. Your identity cannot be overpowered by anything realise that you must blossom with all your unique qualities and live as never before.

You have limited time but unlimited opportunities. Take risks and be a high achiever. Excel in everything that you do. Every moment is precious. Live fully and enjoy it. You get only one shot at life. Do not hold back, this is your opportunity to shine and illumine the world. What you think of yourself that is what you make yourself. You have the power to choose who you want to be. Be the grandest, greatest and the best that you can be.